- 398 CAPTAIN COOK'S HM BARK "ENDEAVOUR" PLAQUE:
 A cannon emblem made from pig-iron ballast tossed overboard from HMS Endeavour after it foundered in 1770 on what is now Endeavour Reef off the Queensland coast. The emblem, featuring the royal crest of King George II, was taken from one of the six cannons recovered, together with a quantity of iron and stone ballast, that was jettisoned by Captain Cook in 1770, and discovered in 1969 by an American expedition from the Philadelphia Academy of Natural Sciences, under the leadership of Dr Virgil Kaufman. The emblem was used as the master mould for a dozen replicas, each mounted on wooden plaques - seven were presented in 1970 to heads of Government, including Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth II and the President of the United States, to commemorate Captain James Cook's Bicentenary. This plaque, one of only 4 in private hands, was presented to the designer, Greg Jones, at the time a young draughtsman in the Department of Shipping and Transport. Offered with Certificate of Authenticity, metallurgy report, and background documentation. [One of the other plaques is in the Australian National Maritime Museum in Sydney, and of the other three in private hands, one is with the family of Dr Virgil Kaufman].
